

MR. PRESIDENT

by Patrick and Vinmont

JOHN ADAMS

Born in Braintree, Massachusetts, October 30, 1735. He graduated from Harvard and was admitted to the bar, 1758. He financed his education by teaching school.

He served as a member of the Continental Congress and proposed Washington for Commander-in-Chief of the Revolutionary army. He was one of the committee to draft the Declaration of Independence and signed it.

With Benjamin Franklin and John Jay, he negotiated the treaty of peace with Great Britain in 1783. As Minister to England, 1785, he was the first independent American to stand before the English throne.

He was the first Vice-President of the United States, the first President to occupy the White House and lived to see his son, John Quincy Adams, become President. Writing was his hobby. He published many articles dealing with the constitutional rights of the people.

He was inaugurated the second President of the United States, March 4, 1797. The support and passing of the Alien and Sedition Acts, during his administration, spelled doom for his party.

By taking upon himself the responsibility of peace with France, he went to sure defeat in the election of 1800. For a quarter of a century, he nursed the grudges of his political life. He died in Quincy, Massachusetts, July 4, 1826, aged 90.

JOHN MARSHALL

Born in Germantown, Virginia, 1755. He was studying law at 18 when he entered the army in the Revolutionary War. After eight years service, he renewed the study of law and was admitted to the bar. He soon gained recognition as one of the leading attorneys in Virginia.

He served as a member of the Virginia Assembly in 1782 and 1795. He was one of the commission sent to France to settle trade disputes with the French in 1797, a member of Congress, 1799, and Secretary of State in 1800.

While Secretary of State, Marshall (pictured above) was appointed Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, serving both offices until March 4, 1801. His interpretations and decisions as Chief Justice during the next 34 years established and enlarged the powers of the Federal government.

Nearly every important part of the United States Constitution, as it existed before the amendments, is treated in one or more of 44 cases involving constitution law on which he rendered decisions. He died in 1835, recognized as a constitutional lawyer without a rival.

President Adams' Vice-President was Thomas Jefferson.

MRS. JOHN ADAMS

Abigail Smith Adams, born in Massachusetts in 1744, stands alone as the wife of one President and the mother of another. Gifted with a superior mind, she was carefully educated by her scholarly father. At twenty-two, she married John Adams. As he was often away during the Revolution, she managed their farm, taught her children and wrote fascinating letters, many of which have since been published, that attest to her mental alertness on far-ranging subjects. She was with her husband during his missions in Paris and England.

The White House was completed only a few months before the close of her husband's tenure. As its first occupant, this delightful and interesting First Lady maintained the formal tone she had established in the Executive Mansion in Philadelphia. She died in 1818.

History Students Urged To Clip Weekly Series On Presidents Appearing In Record

THE SECOND in the weekly series titled "Mr. President" is presented today above, and gives, in vivid clarity, the life of President John Adams.

History comes alive for the average American in this series, describing not only the president, himself, but also those surrounding him closest—his wife and his vice president.

Although the histories are, of necessity, encompassed in a few words, they are also complete and cover all the high spots in the lives of our 33 chief executives.

Historians will find much to stir them in the terse biographies included in "Mr. President." They are the work of Dr. Rolf

B. Vinmont, an expert on presidential history and lore.

Illustrated with great realism by Samuel J. Patrick, well-known newspaper artist, the series gives several little-known facts about the great, and near-great, who have inhabited the White House.

Since the presidential election in November will throw even greater focus upon the office and the man who will hold it for the next four years, it is well for all Americans to glimpse also those who have held it in the past.

Students of history are urged to clip the series, starting with the life of George Washington which appeared in The Daily Record last Monday, and make a scrapbook of the entire series.

Two additional biographies of the Republican and Democratic nominees for president will be published after the regular series.

Developing Big Rocket Engine

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is developing a rocket engine more than twice as large as the Soviet Union now has, Dr. H. F. York, the Pentagon's research chief, said Sunday.

At the same time, York conceded that the present Soviet rocket is about twice as big as ours which, he said, gives them a decided advantage for the present.

Despite their lesser thrust, present U. S. long-range ballistic missiles are "adequate to do the job they were designed to do," York told Sen. Prescott Bush (R-Conn.).

York agreed with Bush that this country had moved quickly in the missile field after a long lull between the end of World War II and 1952.

Macmillan, Ike Confer Today; Cubans Cheer Castro's Threats

Hits U.S. Business Interests

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro declared Sunday his "people's army" would fight to the death any aggression against Cuba organized by U.S. business interests.

Castro and his brother, Raul, addressed an estimated 50,000 uniformed workers, peasants, students and women who paraded over the runways at Camp Libertad air base. The parade was a preview of what authorities say will be a march by a million militiamen on May Day.

Not Accidental
Both Castro brothers singled out North Americans in charging that only big business interests were against Cuba.

"The attacks we are receiving from great North American interests are not accidental," Fidel said. "If the Cuban revolution had taken place in Saudi Arabia, the problem would have been the same with the great North American monopolies. It is not simply a problem of distance, nor geography nor of politics. It is a problem of economic exploitation. All peoples of the world are behind this army."

The crowd roared its cheers. Castro later went before a meeting of sugar workers, where he voiced warnings of an outside attack against Cuba.

Mills As Fortresses

In a 2½-hour speech, he shouted: "We must be prepared to convert every sugar mill into a fortress in case of attack. If foreign aggression comes, we will destroy the sugar mills, defending them as fortresses if necessary. We are the only one who can produce sugar here."

Castro, haggard looking, got up from a sick bed to address the militiamen, whose organization he called for last October.

He spoke of an invasion of Cuba, by mercenaries as a near certainty, thus echoing his brother Raul, minister of armed forces.

Both vowed Cuba would not be another Guatemala, referring to the overthrow of the Red-tinted government of Jacobo Arbenz in 1954. They charged that regime was toppled by mercenaries serving foreign interests.

Invader Must Fight

The Prime Minister said the only hope left for his enemies was the "unfounded hope that Americans are going to come to resolve all their problems."

"The people of Guatemala were defenseless," he said. "Any invader here will have to fight against workers, peasants and students of the whole nation."

Raul Castro attacked anti-Red radio and TV commentator Luis Conte Aguerre and told enemies of the revolution within Cuba to get out as "the people will not be generous with its traitors."

The familiar chant of "pardon"—to the execution wall—then swelled from the crowd.

The armed forces chief also renewed his attacks on the newspapers Diario de la Marina and Prensa Libre, two independent publications which have been waging an anti-Communist campaign.

He added that the causes of such delinquency are multiple, and said therefore, "multiple measures must be used to weed them out."

Speaking at the University of Maryland in suburban College Park, Md., the President went on to say, however, that in dealing with juvenile delinquency, "we must beware of a tendency to generalize pessimistically."

The 69-year-old President said it is clear that the rising generation must be more informally minded and more diplomatically skillful than the one to which he belongs.

Eisenhower, in a speech prepared for the 7,000 conference participants and an additional several thousand guests, also spoke of juvenile delinquency as a problem which has grown larger each year until it now is a matter of world-wide concern.

See Chance Of Topping Kennedy

Johnson Supporters Express Hope

WASHINGTON (AP)—If he can hold the South, strategists for Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson now believe he can top Sen. John F. Kennedy in early convention balloting for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The Johnson camp's latest run-down on delegates indicates the Senate's Democratic leader can run up around 500 votes — if the 11 Southern states stay behind him with their 352.

The Texas senator's followers credit Kennedy with a slightly smaller total toward the 761 necessary to win the nomination. Some of Kennedy's agents concede that Johnson may have more convention votes at first, but they say the Massachusetts senator's potential is much greater.

Despite complaints about his role in pushing civil rights legislation toward almost certain enactment, Johnson's men are outwardly unworried about his Southern backing.

It is their belief that, as a practical matter, Southern Democrats will decide when the chips are down they have no other place to go—that Johnson is less objectionable to them than any other candidate.

Outside the South the Johnson camp is claiming the solid backing of Kentucky's 31 votes, Oklahoma's 29 and Arizona's 17, totaling 77.

In addition, his strategists are laying claims to delegate support in Alaska, Delaware, Hawaii, Idaho, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah and West Virginia. These states cast 144 convention votes and if Johnson got half of them — which they admit may be too optimistic an estimate — he could top the 500 mark.

The Johnson workers' estimate of Kennedy strength concedes the Massachusetts senator 160 New England convention votes for a starter. They add 64 in Ohio and 24 in Maryland, but contend Kennedy will have these only on the first ballot. They give him most of 34 in Indiana and whatever he wins of Wisconsin's 31 in that state's April 5 primary.

French In Leftwing Belt Give Krushchev Warmest Welcome

MARSEILLE, France (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev swept through the leftwing belt of southern France Sunday to the warmest welcome since he reached France Wednesday.

From Nîmes to Arles to Marseille, the biggest of French ports, it was a rising volume of applause and shouting for the Soviet Premier. Crowds grew bigger and bigger as he arrived at the center of Marseille, a strong Communist city.

In the drive of several miles through the city, many streets were lined from end to end, several deep. Then he swung into the famed Cannegie—the Fifth Avenue of Marseille—the crowd was pressed thickly against steel barriers.

The caravan went to the Prefecture where he is spending the night. An official dinner was given him there but there were no serious speeches.

He was clearly getting tired as the day wore on, but his enthusiasm mounted as the crowds increased despite pelting rain.

The size of the crowds was hard to estimate. In Marseille, authorities estimated the crowds in tens of thousands, the biggest single turnout since his arrival in France.

Khrushchev arrived to spend the second night of his provincial tour after rolling through southern France, gesturing like a victorious prize fighter and extolling Soviet agriculture and industry.

Hand Shakes

The expansive Soviet Premier cast formality aside where possible to get on a hand-shaking basis with crowds that lined his route despite steady rains and cheered him.

Khrushchev ladled out compliments and polite phrases but followed up at half a dozen spots with claims that Soviet agriculture and industry were surpassing that of other nations.

His spirits appeared on the rise as his tour of the provinces moved through its second day. His French hosts apparently also began to relax a little.

Khrushchev had moved out of a region where conservative independents and Christian Democrats are dominant. They gave him a cool, restrained reception Saturday. Now he was in country where the Communist party is strong.

He set the tone for his day after breakfast in Pau. He was into the street shaking hands and handing out Sputnik buttons before anyone realized what was up. The impromptu tour threw his schedule behind for the rest of the day.

June Marks Beginning Of Radar Checks

HARRISBURG (AP) — Experimental use of radar to check on speeders will begin in Pennsylvania in June, Col. Frank C. McCartney, state police commissioner, reported Sunday.

McCartney emphasized that motorists stopped by state police in radar checks face no danger of losing driving privileges. Rather, troopers will inform the motorist that his speed is endangering the safety of others, the commissioner said.

The experiment is part of Gov. Lawrence's highway safety program announced in February.

It is designed to win public support for a new attempt to legalize use of radar evidence in prosecuting speeders. The legislature has rejected previous attempts to get an enabling law passed.

LONDON (AP) — A British newspaper Sunday published what it called reliable reports that Spain's Generalissimo Francisco Franco suffered a heart attack while returning to Madrid from a hunting trip 10 days ago.

Clerk Admits Murdering Woman, Girl

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Police said today a warehouse clerk admitted slaying a woman he met a week ago and her 10-year-old daughter.

Detectives quoted Charles C. Patrick, 26, as saying he "got the urge to squeeze" Mrs. Lula Overton, 30, and Gloria Louise.

Their bodies were found Saturday night in the bathroom of their three-room apartment. Mrs. Overton was lying on the floor. Her clothes were ripped apart in front. Gloria was in the partly filled bathtub. She was wearing a night shirt.

Detective Joseph Tursi said both had been strangled and the mother had been stabbed. Neither, he said, had been sexually assaulted.

Patrick was held without bail on a homicide charge. Tursi said he signed a statement admitting that the crime took place early Friday morning while he was at the apartment.

The bodies were found by Mrs. Overton's sister, who came to the apartment because Gloria had failed to visit her, as she usually did on Saturday morning.

All are Negroes.

Genesis 19:15-22 or Romans 3:21-26

Return, ye backsliding children, and I will heal your backslidings. Behold, we come unto thee: for thou art the Lord our God. (Jeremiah 3:22.)

Everything was ready for the blast of dynamite in the quarry. The workers had taken cover. The explosion was expected at any moment. Suddenly someone saw the little daughter of one of the workers. She was heading toward the very place where the rocks would be falling after the blast. The men did all they could, shouting and waving to her, but she did not understand.

The child's mother appeared. Seeing the danger, she just knelt down and stretched out her arms. The little one ran into the open arms of her mother, just as behind her occurred the explosion. Thus the child's life was saved.

We are in the same position as this little girl. Many approaches and efforts bewilder and confuse us. But look! We see in Christ the love of God beckoning us to come to Him. Let us respond to His call, "Come unto me," and find the spiritual security and peace He offers.

Prayer: Dear Father, we thank Thee that by the sacrifice of Thy Son Thou hast made it possible for us to become Thy children. Help us to look to Christ and find salvation in Him. Give us also a simple, clear testimony that others may be drawn to Thee. In Jesus' name we pray. Amen.

British Seek Acceptance Of Test Ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Macmillan conferred with top aides at the British Embassy Sunday on plans he hopes to persuade President Eisenhower to adopt for forthcoming dealings with the Russians.

Macmillan, who arrived from London Saturday night, journeyed with Eisenhower to the President's secluded Camp David retreat Monday for a private little summit meeting of their own that may last until Wednesday.

Urged To Accept

The two Allied leaders were not scheduled to meet Sunday. British and American officials huddled separately on their plans for answering Moscow's new atomic test ban offer and on what to discuss with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev at the Paris summit parley starting May 16.

Eisenhower was unanimously urged by three U. S. experts on disarmament to join with Macmillan in moving quickly to an accord with the Soviet Union on a test ban.

Interviewed on ABC television—"Open Hearing"—President Eisenhower's former disarmament adviser, Harold E. Stassen, and Trevor Gardner, former assistant secretary of Air Force, saw a 50-50 chance for reaching an agreement with the Reds at the summit parley if Eisenhower presses for an accord.

A Chicago University professor, Hans J. Morgenthau, said agreement was possible even sooner.

Favors Compromise

Macmillan, resting at the British Embassy, canvassed the situation with Ambassador Harold Caccia and advisers who accompanied him from London. These include Cabinet Secretary Norman Brook, atomic energy expert William Penney and C. D. W. O'Neill, Foreign Office assistant undersecretary.

Macmillan is anxious to have Eisenhower's agreement to a compromise with the Soviet Union on a ban against nuclear explosions.

The Reds have proclaimed their willingness at the Geneva test ban talks to accept a treaty against the easily detectable large atomic blasts, as proposed by the United States, provided a moratorium is applied also to smaller underground shots while scientists search for better means of detecting these lesser blasts.

The United States is against a test ban except to the extent that it can be policed against violators. The Russians have pushed for a halt to tests while balking at controls the West says are necessary.

It was reported Sunday that the U. S. view of the Soviet proposal now is so close to that of the British that Eisenhower and Macmillan will be able to spend much of their time at Camp David discussing other problems.

Midwest Lights North-South Fuse

DETROIT (AP) — Midwest Democrats, with National Chairman Paul M. Butler in the vanguard, took a tough stand on civil rights Sunday and lit the fuse for a possible North-South explosion at the party's national convention.

Butler beckoned to loyal Southern Democrats to send rival delegations into the convention to challenge Dixie renegades who balk at backing the party ticket.

Three of the top Democratic contenders for the presidential nominations stood in the wings while this maneuvering was going on.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Stuart Symington of Missouri took no direct hand in it. Instead, from the same platforms, they were bidding for support of people of foreign extraction, the old folks, the big United Automobile Workers Union.

Driver Hurt As Car Hits Abutment

A STROUDSBURG man is in satisfactory condition in Monroe County General Hospital following an accident at 4 a.m. Sunday.

August E. Rohe, 33, of 1222 Dreher Ave., Stroudsburg, told police he was traveling east on Route 209 when his car struck a bridge abutment near Beseker's Diner. Rohe said he did not know how the accident occurred, police reported.

Rohe told police he was coming back to Stroudsburg from a service station opening in Bath at the time of the crash.

Pinned Behind Wheel
Rohe told police he awoke from the impact and found himself pinned behind the wheel temporarily. Extricating himself, he walked to the diner where an ambulance was called and he was taken to the hospital.

Hospital authorities said Rohe was in satisfactory condition, with cuts and a fracture of the face and possible abdominal injuries.

Revenue Secretary Charles M. Dougherty said Sunday the Motor Vehicles Bureau is bracing for a last-minute rush for tags before the deadline.

Monroe One Of Eight Counties

Planning Urged On Regional Basis

ALLENTOWN—Representatives of eight counties in the Lehigh Valley area, including Monroe, heard three speakers plug area planning, and urge that something be done in the immediate future.

Speakers were Daniel Rogers, director of community planning for the State Dept. of Commerce; Dennis A. Cahill, director of the Northern Virginia Regional Planning Office, and Virginia's Fairfax County, who was one of the leaders in that state's recent move on planning.

Stating that "regional planning is easier if coordinated planning is used first and is also more efficient and cheaper from the tax outlook," Rogers said such planning cuts down on duplicated effort from many agencies.

Rogers stressed that many evils can arise unless coordinated regional planning is undertaken as soon as possible.

Rogers said the Lehigh Valley regional planning commission would encompass nearly 200 municipalities and some 700,000 people. Of the 18 other regional planning commissions in the state, only two have as many as 17 municipalities. Most have 10 or less, Rogers noted.

While he envisioned some difficulties in the very size of the Lehigh Valley region undertaking, he offered two possible points of departure to get things started:

(1). Continuous working toward creation of county planning commissioners until a regional commission would coordinate the county activities. He cited "well organized" work in Bucks County as an example.

(2). A modification of the first plan, creating a regional planning commission of two central counties (Lehigh and Northampton in this case) and letting this nucleus grow to encompass outlying counties.

Cahill explained the Virginia plan in which four counties and two cities are running the Northern Virginia Regional Planning Commission. He pointed out that the presence of Washington, D. C. adds to the many problems faced by the political sub-divisions in that area.

Bain stressed the need of getting the best men to do the job, and pointed out four important items for consideration before starting the program. They are pick interested and alert citizens, give them a specific job to accomplish, give them a minimum amount of time to do the work, and pick a chairman who can make a decision and stick to the decision.

Following the talks by the speakers, the representatives of the counties—Monroe, Lehigh, Northampton, Bucks, Berks, Carbon, Schuylkill and Warren—were given opportunities to ask questions concerning their own specific areas.

Auto Skids On Highway, Causes Crash

STROUDSBURG State Police reported an accident occurred on Route 611, five miles north of Stroudsburg, near Bartonsville, at 9:20 a.m. Saturday.

Jean G. Snopkowski, 29, of Dupont, told police she was attempting to pass a truck when her car, owned by Edmund Popowski, also of Dupont, struck slippery spots in the highway center, and skidded, spun into the guard rail on the left side of the road, then bounced back to the center of the highway where it stopped.

Hit First Car
Thomas R. McMullen, 25, of Avoca, told police his car struck the Snopkowski vehicle during its spin as he was following the damaged car.

There was no injuries, but damage to the Snopkowski auto was estimated at $1,000 while slight damage was caused to the McMullen car.

Kenya Leader Jeered By Mob

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—Tom Mboya was jeered Sunday by his own countrymen. It was the first time the young Kenyan nationalist leader had been given a hostile reception in his political career.

He went to Kiambu in Kihuyu-land—home of the Mau Mau—for a conference aimed at forming a new, all-embracing African political group. As he stepped from his car, jeering crowds yelled their disappointment at his failure to achieve immediate independence for Kenya at recent London constitutional talks.

Civil Rights Debate Recalls Equal Rights Penalty Clause

WASHINGTON (AP)—The civil rights debate has renewed suggestions in Congress for invoking a never-used constitutional penalty against states that deny the vote to some of their citizens.

The provision is Section 2 of the "equal protection of the laws" amendment, the 14th, which was declared ratified more than 91 years ago. The section provides that a state which denies the vote to any of its male adult citizens for any reason but "participation in rebellion or other crime" shall have its number of representatives in the House proportionately reduced.

Rep. Alvin M. Bentley (R-Mich.) said "I intend to do all in my power to press for congressional action in this direction" regardless of the outcome of the fight over Negro voting protection legislation. Others have mentioned, less formally, the same possibility.

Bentley, inserting his views in the Congressional Record, included a study prepared by the Library of Congress at his request on the history of the provision and the arguments for and against enforcing it.

One difficulty, the study indicates, comes from the sweeping language of the section. Historically, it was clearly intended to insure the vote for Negroes in the Southern states which had seceded and lost the Civil War. But by its language it strikes at all restrictions on voting rights except for crime.

All states have some restrictions on voting—at least a minimum residence time requirement. In most cases it is a sanity requirement, in some a literacy test and there is a sprinkling of other possible disqualifications. For example, Virginia and Nevada punish dueling by taking away the voting rights of participants.

The library study said some requirements are obviously reasonable but it would be difficult to make distinctions and even more difficult to gather statistics based on such distinctions. Any reduction of the congressional delegation would have to be based on a count of citizens discriminated against.

But the researchers impartially noted that some advocates insist it is well within the capacity of the census machinery to get the facts.

Urges Hike For State Workers

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The AFL Pittsburgh Central Labor Union urged Gov. Lawrence in a telegram yesterday to have the State Legislature consider pay increases for 70,000 state workers as soon as possible—even if it is necessary to call a special legislative session.

The telegram, signed by President John A. Feigel, said:

"Deferment to regular session of legislature convening next year only adds to the plight of state employees faced with insurmountable increases in cost of living.

"Employees turnover caused by employees seeking other higher paying employment is acknowledged to be costly to the Commonwealth in addition to reducing efficiency of operation.

"As no adjustment in salaries has been made in over six years, situation has become acute."

Woman Killed In Accident

SHENANDOAH, Pa. (AP)—Janet Wilson, 27, of Mahanoy City, was killed Sunday when her car went off Route 45 in nearby Gilberton and struck a pole.

Investigators said Mrs. Wilson, alone in the vehicle, was returning to her home from Reading Hospital, where she was employed.

YOU CAN'T BUY ANY CAR FOR LESS UNLESS IT'S A LOT LESS CAR

There just isn't any car that does better by your dollars than this new Chevrolet. Look at all these fine features—worth a bundle of money more to you—that just can't be found in any other car near Chevy's size and price!

- MORE ROAD AND RAMP CLEARANCE Straddle rough spots with space to spare, thanks to Chevrolet's greater road clearance. And more generous ramp angles, front and rear, give you the go-ahead on steep driveways.
- MORE USEABLE TRUNK SPACE Up to a thumping 22.5% more, in fact! And this is space you can get at from either side or the rear. The loading is easier than ever, too, with a lower sill and a higher opening lid.
- FULL COIL CUSHIONING Nobody's come up with a suspension yet that can out-gentle Full Coil cushioning. A resilient coil spring at every wheel helps blot out road shocks far more effectively than leaf springs.
- WIDER SEATING Chevy gives you up to 3.1 inches more hip room, front and rear, than any other full-sized car in its field. As for foot room, Chevy will please you right down to your toes with the smallest transmission tunnel in its field.
- HIGHER ENTRANCE HEIGHT Chevrolet makes it comfort a cinch to sink into, with as much as 3.1 inches of extra entrance height. And once you're in, you enjoy all the craftsmanship of Body by Fisher.
- WIDEST CHOICE OF POWER TEAMS You can choose from seven vigorous engines and five silk-smooth transmissions—24 combinations in all. Nobody else where gives you so many power teams to choose from!
- MORE "EXTRAS" AT NO EXTRA COST Vent windows you open with a crank . . . foam cushioning in the front seat of every model . . . we could go on and on. But why spoil the surprise waiting for you at your dealer's?

What Are We Doing?

Anyone who thought that the status quo would be maintained in the Delaware River Basin for years to come saw his illusions destroyed last week when the Army Corps of Engineers proposed construction of 11 major reservoirs in the basin at a cost of $264,000,000.

The largest of the reservoirs would be at Tocks Island and would extend upstream from a point about midway between Shawnee and Bushkill. The project would cost $93,000,000 and store 765,000 acre-feet of water.

A great majority of the dams are to be built in Pennsylvania on the major streams feeding the Delaware. They range in cost from four to 44 million dollars, starting near the New York and Pennsylvania border and ending with two near Wilmington, Del.

The widespread use to which the dams will be put is indicated by the fact that the plan will provide 38,300 acres of additional recreational waters, augment the surface flows of the Delaware and its tributaries by 2,100 cubic feet per second for present and future water supply requirements, reduce flood damage by 46 percent in reaches affected by the major impounding sites, and produce 385 million kilowatt hours of electricity annually to help satisfy increasing power needs.

The overall plan is based on the prediction that within 50 years the number of people dependent on Delaware River water will be double the present population of 21,000,000 and that industrial needs for water will be far greater.

Many of the projects are either in our own province or close by. This lends new weight to our oft-repeated forecast that the Pocono area will, in the foreseeable future, be engulfed by the population and industrial expansion that is steadily moving up the Delaware River.

The important question doesn't concern the date it will become evident here. The transition probably will be gradual rather than sudden. But it is certain to come.

The most pertinent point, as we see it, is: what are we doing to prepare for the change? Are we, in fact, doing anything to set up a planning program for our own county so that we may integrate our thinking in a broad, multi-county organization aimed at putting planning on a regional basis?

Unfortunately, Monroe County is doing nothing that we know of in the way of planning. True, East Stroudsburg and Stroud Township have taken initial steps, but county officials have yet to fulfill their long-standing promise to take definite steps toward establishing planning on an honest-to-goodness basis.

The county commissioners meet today. We urge that they and their solicitor see fit to put planning high on their agenda of business. Nothing can be more important from the long-range viewpoint than protecting our land values from the erosion which unplanned development creates.

Important Youth Conference

The Golden Anniversary White House Conference for Children and Youth, being held in Washington this week, may well turn out to be one of the most significant events of the decade.

At this conference 7000 persons from all over America will come to grips with the most important problems affecting tomorrow's citizens. They will discuss what can be done to overcome the steady fading and blurring of the traditional patterns of family life; how it can be done; and how to pay for it.

This is a large assignment. It would be impossible of accomplishment were it not for two facts: First, the 7000 delegates will be broken up into small groups of 30 to hammer out solutions in a way not achievable in large meetings; and second, these delegates, prominent laymen and professionals, have not only been hand-picked but they are prepared for their job to a degree unparalleled in a conference of this kind.

For example, during the past year 25,000 Pennsylvanians, in 65 counties have been involved in studying the needs of our young folks and making recommendations for the guidance of our official delegates.

Since the last decennial White House Conference, Pennsylvania has made appreciable progress in improving her services for children and youth—in educational programs for the normal child and for the mentally and physically handicapped; in health provisions for school children; in adoption, delinquency, and mental health programs; and in child welfare services generally.

The Daily Record, in saluting the Golden Anniversary White House Conference, hopes that it will be a springboard for even greater advance in the decade to come.

The Pennsylvania Story

Challenge GOP Edge

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg, Pa.

Democratic leaders are in a spirited do-or-die spirit to convert the Keystone State into a "Democratic state" by the time the Fall presidential elections roll around—both vote and registrationwise.

Party strategists make no bones about the fact that overcoming the Republican registration edge is of paramount importance this year—as a springboard to gubernatorial 1962, for one thing.

Similarly, whether Pennsylvania goes Democratic or Republican—vote-wise—in the November run-off is of extremely critical moment in viewing the immediate or 1960 picture.

Illustrating the intent desire and determination on the part of Democrats to wipe off the books the thinning GOP registration edge—which less than eight years ago was close to 1,000,000 but which in the 1959 November general election had piddled down to a shade under 70,000—was this comment the other day by Pennsylvania's

Democratic Governor David L. Lawrence.

"It now seems entirely probable that when the registration books are closed in the Fall, the Democratic Party will have the majority of enrolled voters in our state."

Will they or won't they? If they are successful, they will have accomplished what older observers around Capitol Hill have said is "virtually impossible."

Unquestionably the trend is in that direction—as the voter registration figures clearly indicate—but whether it is destined to continue in this direction or whether it has reached the tapering off point remains to be seen.

Mr. Lawrence again perhaps inadvertently summed it up at his last press conference when asked by a reporter if he didn't think Pennsylvania would be pretty much of a "swing state"

George Sokolsky Says . . .

A Book-Letter

When publishers submit books for review, they usually set a publication date and it has long been customary not to violate that date. There is no logic about the matter, the publisher sending the book at his own risk.

But as there are these days newsletters about everything, there are newsletters about books. Such a newsletter is apparently not required to abide by the publication date. It is free to discuss in February what others are not to say anything about until April.

Such a newsletter is issued by Virginia Kirkus and she is given this advantage because it is assumed that she informs only the trade and that bookstores make their advance purchases based upon her short paragraph digests of books which tip bookstores as to what they should buy.

So far as I am concerned, if Virginia Kirkus may refer to a book some months prior to its publication date, so may I and I shall do it.

My particular interest is a book by Ralph de Toledano, entitled "Lament for a Generation" to which the Kirkus circular refers in this manner:

"The author of the controversial 'Seeds of Treason' and 'Nixon' plots his twenty year voyage from Columbia University Stalinism to the New Conservatism of current times."

Mirror of Time

—by C. H. WESTBROOK

10 Years Ago

Crash Landing of Plane — State police and a group of Blooming Grove Twp. farmers broke through nearly three feet of Pike Co. snow to reach two Cambridge men whose small cabin plane was crashed on a mountain ridge plateau 13 miles northeast of Milford. The two men were not badly injured.

Visitors — Mrs. Walter Kevo Canfield, N.J., and her children, Walda, James and Pete spent the weekend at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Price, E.S.

At Retreat — Ernest H. Wyckoff and Arlington Williams attended the laymen's retreat on Friday and Saturday at Stoney Point.

Tribute to O'Neill — At meeting at Pocono Mts. Chamber of Commerce, Gerald P. O'Neill, pres., was highly praised for the work he had done for the community and this county. Arlington W. Williams was guest speaker.

20 Years Ago

Highway — State officials are at Stormville and here. Localities express opinions on reconstruction of Route 154 from Stroudsburg to Saylorsburg through Long Woods and Cherry Valley.

Sugar Maples — In Greene-Dreher forest section maple trees are being tapped. The tall sugar-maples are sending their sap up from the roots in preparation for Spring foliage.

Chinese Relief — Pastors and others organize county to secure funds for refugees. Dr. Ma, a Chinese woman, who has endorsed the Christian faith, will speak at meeting.

Juvenile Band — About 125 players will come to concert planned at State Teachers.

It is an unpleasant trip, and one which makes about as strong a polemic against Liberalism as one can find nowadays.

"The first ten years — break with the Party, concern over the murders of Trotsky and Carlo Tresca — create a classic of the 'Thirties' intellectual humping out of Communism, into the purgation of War, and on to a final acceptance of God. But this pendulum swings much farther right than most of the contemporaries he laments."

"Working for 'Newsweek' he discovers new saints in Hoover, Nixon and Chambers. He idealizes them, though like many of his friends from 'National Review' he steps around the McCarthy issue by characterizing that sinister ghost as 'just a country boy who hated Communism.'"

"...even in that self-conscious, overwrought style reminiscent of Mr. Chamber's books, this little autobiography will enlist a few more souls for the Far Right camp, but will probably only alienate or disgust a far greater number of readers."

First of all, I cannot imagine why de Toledano should be called upon to write an autobiographical book. He is too young for that. Nevertheless, Vincent Sheehan wrote "Personal History" when he was very young and made a reputation thereby.

I have read the de Toledano book and must say that I was very annoyed at some of it, particularly the references to Joe McCarthy and Roy Cohn which I regarded as very wrong indeed. I also thought it stupid of Richard Nixon, a Presidential candidate, to write a foreword in a style which nobody will recognize as Richard Nixon's.

Having got that off my chest I return to Virginia Kirkus. She first of all gives the impression that de Toledano was once a Communist. This is untrue. In no place in his book does he say so and I happen to know that it never was true.

What appears is a paragraph written by an ignoramus who does not begin to know what Communism means or what the Communist Party is. In New York State, it is libel per se to call a man a Communist.

Secondly, the point is made that de Toledano, "working for 'Newsweek,'" discovers new saints in Hoover, Nixon and Chambers, meaning, of course, Whitaker. This is cheap stuff. A reporter knows many persons of all kinds.

I have, for instance, known Earl Browder, Thomas Lamont, Elsa Maxwell and Frank Costello. I also know intimately Sun Yat-sen and at one time saw quite a bit of Leon Trotsky and J. Stalin and Bernard Macfadden. What does all this prove?

It only proves that whoever wrote the paragraph in the Virginia Kirkus review never met Herbert Hoover, Richard Nixon or Whitaker Chambers and cannot boast about their acquaintance.

What this book-letter actually attempts to do is to murder a book prior to its publication. In the last sentence, it practically advises bookstores not to stock a book which was obviously beyond the understanding of the mind of the person who undertook the job of killing it.

This should not be read as a review of the deToledano book which I shall some day criticize more seriously. It should be read as a protest against book-burning.

With Walter Winchell On Broadway

Show Business Communiques

Marie Torre, the tv critic, reported: "It is the firm conviction of many broadcast-ers from Robert W. Sarruff down the press takes inordinate delight in ripping apart the electronic medium, a notion that has prompted broadcasters to suggest they ought to give newspapers a dose of their own medicine and review the newspapers."

Democracy means the expression and exchange of ideas. It is a healthy quality, in my opinion, for the different mediums of communication to be critical of each other. Where there are sacred cows, the people are sheep. By and large, free newspapers have never ducked a fight or lost one.

Actress Jane Fonda insisted: "Critics are bright men. Thank God we live in a country where critics can say what they damn well please."

It is practically revolutionary when an actress takes a bold stand in favor of critics. In the interest of accuracy, however, it should be noted that not all critics are bright. Some are dopes. Some are incompetent. Some are bores. And some are uninformed like newspaper readers who demand to know: "Why do you knock Jack Paar, when did he ever pan you?"

Debbie Reynolds' editorial: "What woman can do her job well when a thousand newspapers are screaming the intimate details of her personal life from the front pages every other day? I don't question the rights of the press. It's a reporter's job to tell people what they want to know; I accept that. But I'm still a woman and I cherish privacy as much right to privacy as I can have."

Life always makes harsh bargains. It never gives anything without getting something. The private lives of those who crave public approval inevitably go into the public domain. Stardom offers gold and glory. But there is a price you must pay for such trophies. Sometimes the price exceeds the value.

Moss Hart observed: "An audience is not interested in how hard an author has worked at his research, or how much material he has unearthed, and they do not take kindly to his parading in front of the footlights his hard-earned knowledge. They are quite right. They have not come to a school room; they have come to a theatre."

Too many playwrights mistake typewriters for soapboxes. Shakespeare didn't try to change the world. He just made the stage a place out of this world.

Eric Johnston, the movie exec, stated: "Censorship can't give us what we seek. It is negative. Parents should accept the responsibilities of freedom rather than rely on state-established standards of truth and falsehood, goodness and evil, and wisdom and folly."

Taste is an essential discipline of the spirit, a habit of mind, a factor of temperament, almost a trait of character. It is as individual as a fingerprint and as private as a toothbrush.

Columnist John Crosby reported: "All radio and twelve stations get their licenses by making sweeping promises about what they propose to do with their stations. Once made, these promises are practically never kept and the F.C.C. makes only the most perfunctory perusal of them when it comes to renew the license."

The maintenance of balance between entertainment and public service is a difficult job of juggling. Television stations are basically economic units. Survival demands that they be self-supporting. In the final analysis, what the people will see and hear will be determined by the people. No government agency is as powerful as the individual — who has the power to turn a dial.

Carl Sandburg orated: "Television and films have some priceless offerings of genius. But these offerings are a small percentage of the total product."

One can hope that the films and television would be gifted with more genius. But it remains a hope. In every artistic field, mediocrity is the rule and genius is the exception. Rarity is what gives

Inside Washington

60 Million To Pay $40 Billion Tax

Washington — The Internal Revenue Service estimates that 60 million individual taxpayers will pay $40 billion into the federal treasury on their 1959 taxes.

This is roughly half the total government collections from all sources, and will represent an all-time record.

About 40 million individuals use the so-called "short form" return which requires a minimum of information and allows automatic deductions for anyone earning less than $10,000 a year. However, this group only accounts for about $10 billion in collections. The 20 million persons who file the long forms will pay in $30 billion.

As the tax deadline of April 15 approaches, the IRS is getting ready to crack down on expense account living — at long last. A couple of years ago, the service approached the problem from the standpoint of making individuals keep track of their expense accounts and figure them in as a part of their individual gross revenue.

There was quite a howl about this from many people who had legitimate expenses from their employers and didn't see the necessity of keeping a complicated set of books. The IRS retreated this plan.

Now, effective for the 1960 business year, IRS is going to make companies, partnerships and labor unions keep closer track of the expenses they pay out and make them justify the outlays.

The target is those individuals who take "business trips" with their families to lush resorts, entertain at swank hotels and bistros, and pay their apartments, club dues and autos and yachts out of company money.

Religion In Politics — Al Smith's 1928 defeat in the presidential elections is universally attributed to the fact that he was a Catholic. However, as the religious issue is being raised again, some political pros are taking another look at the voting that year and are now not at all certain that he was defeated by anti-Catholics.

They point out that there were many other factors in the political atmosphere — particularly good times, which traditionally favor the Republican party.

Research shows that while Smith was the last Catholic to make the presidential race, he won more electoral votes than did Herbert Hoover in 1932, Alfred M. Landon in 1936, Wendell Willkie in 1940, or Adlai Stevenson in 1956.

The cold fact is that politics is an inexact science and "experts" have a habit of attributing success and failure to factors which may or may not be valid.

The Allen-Scott Report

Rubottom Ouster Urged

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — The two top Republican leaders of the Senate are engaged in the very unusual endeavor of trying to ax a high Administration official — an Assistant Secretary of State Roy Rubottom, in charge of Inter-American Affairs.

Senate GOP Leader, Everett Dirksen, Ill., and Senator Styles Bridges, N.H., chairman of the GOP Policy Committee, when rebuffed by Secretary Christian Herter that Rubottom be replaced, went directly to President Eisenhower and bluntly asked him to do this.

Clearly surprised, the President replied their complaint was the first he had heard against the career diplomat, whom he promoted to Assistant Secretary in 1957 with unanimous Senate approval.

He said he would discuss the matter with Herter.

Two recent headline events are apparently behind this exceptional inner Administration hassle: (1) Strong congressional resentment at Rubottom's telegraphing Governor Pat Brown, that resulted in the last-minute postponement of the execution of Caryl Chessman. (2) Equally sharp ire at Ambassador Philip Bonsal's return to Cuba.

That was vigorously opposed by Bridges and Dirksen. Bridges and several Republican members of the influential Foreign Relations Committee had sternly counseled Secretary Herter against it.

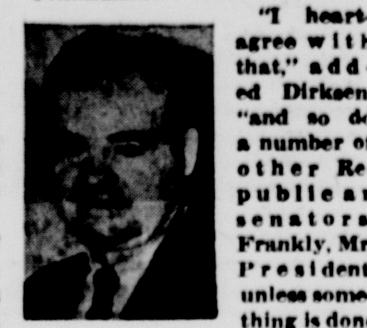

The State Department chief told them that both Rubottom and Bonsal deemed the latter's early return to the Havana embassy advisable, and he agreed with them. Thereupon, Bridges criticized Rubottom, and contended that if an ambassador is sent to Cuba, it should not be Bonsal.

Bridges and the two GOP Foreign Relations committee-men indicated they consider Rubottom and Bonsal too moderate in dealing with the turbulent and provocative Castro regime. They favor more forceful policies.

Similar views were voiced by Dirksen and Bridges in urging the President to oust Rubottom as head of Latin American affairs.

"Rubottom blundered outrageously in the Chessman case," said Bridges, "and his mishandling of our relations with Cuba is approaching a fiasco. Unless his bungling policies are reversed, there is real danger that much of Central America will fall prey to the Communists."

done quickly about Rubottom, the Administration is headed for serious trouble in Congress.

Rubottom entered the foreign service in 1947, and has specialized in Latin American affairs. He was recommended for Assistant Secretary by the late Secretary Dulles.

New Kremlin Edict — Russia considers the historic Monroe Doctrine "obsolete and invalid."

That's the official word of Mikhail Smirnovsky, counselor of the Soviet embassy in Washington. And the Red diplomat is making no secret of it.

Smirnovsky is flatly torpedoing the Monroe Doctrine in talks he is making around the country. He has said this in Boston, New York and Chicago. Details of his remarks are in the hands of the State Department and other government agencies.

According to the report from Boston, Smirnovsky stated, "My country considers the Monroe Doctrine as obsolete and no longer valid. It is the intention of my government to establish close relations with all the countries of Central and South America regardless of what position the U.S. government takes. My government considers that it has as much right to be active in those countries as the United States."

An Intelligence report on a speech by Raul Castro, younger brother of Fidel and head of the army, quotes him as saying in an inland speech:

"The U.S. is a second-rate power and should be very careful the way it deals with Cuba or we shall give Russia the opportunity it wants to get a foothold in this hemisphere. We shall stop buying cotton, tractors and other supplies in the U.S. We can get all we need from Russia and Egypt."

"Egypt will pay Russia for the Aswan Dam and other things in cotton, and Russia will pay Cuba for its sugar with the cotton it receives from Egypt. We shall get oil and drilling equipment from Russia, and the technicians we need to develop our industries. The Soviet is our friend and will help us to withstand the imperialism and profiteering of the United States."

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

For the observant there is a great thrill in the sight of the first anemone or the first pipsqueak of the season or whatever—but it takes time and patience.

But there was one sign of spring yesterday that even someone in a hurry couldn't help but notice: the pre-school set was in full bloom. What with cold, snow, wind, and wet sidewalks it's been a house-bound season for most of them.

That will not come as news to their mothers, but somehow I hadn't consciously missed them until yesterday when they reappeared on the streets in clumps as colorful as a hillside of daffodils; in flocks as chirpy as a lawnful of robins — and just as welcome.

They were reclaiming toys lost under winter snows, rediscovering the charms of stones and litter around the porches, bouncing on thawing ground that barely begins to give a little but piles up an amazing amount of mud on shoes and over all knees.

And the ice cream truck was tinkling around. Somehow you couldn't help feeling a little encouraged, despite the fact that at the Water Gap Chamber of Commerce supper on Saturday night, somebody was predicting the biggest snow of the season this week.

We've had April snows before and lived through them, but that was when I was younger. However, after that spaghetti supper, I guess I could have hibernated for a week without really starving. The auxiliary prepared the supper, but the men served it, which is always a pleasant sight.

And the supper wasn't without its own sign of Spring — spring primaries, that is, with the politicians turning out in full force. Besides having a sound platform and a good platform personality, candidates also better have a good digestion if they are going to eat their way through.

Scout Troop Honors Its Founder

Delaware Water Gap — At their birthday party last week, the Girl Scout Troop surprised Mrs. Clifford Hauser by presenting her with a 15-year service pin for her leadership. They reviewed the history of the Water Gap Scouts since the first troop was organized by Mrs. Hauser and has worked with them ever since.

Mrs. Bennett Strait, who helped Mrs. Hauser organize the first troop and worked with her for some time, was also an honor guest at the party.

The troop now has 24 active members in three patrols: the seniors, "Chipmunk Patrol" with Mrs. Hauser; the juniors or "Fawns" with Mrs. Ben Geshensky and the youngest, "Wild Cats," with Miss Annette Kulp.

Following the reception, the couple left for a brief wedding stay at Budds Lake, N. J. For traveling the bride wore a black taffeta princess-style dress with a white fur collar, white accessories and her wedding corsage.

After a week, SFM LaBarre returned to Newport, R. I., where he is stationed aboard the USS Grand Canyon until his discharge next December.

Mrs. LaBarre is residing temporarily with her parents. She is employed with the Lee Mar Distributing Co. in Tannersville.

Nursery School Scout Project

Delaware Water Gap — Mothers of four and five year olds in the Water Gap are anticipating every other Saturday morning. The Fawn Patrol of Girl Scouts, working toward their first class badges, will have a nursery school in the firehall every other Saturday from 10 to 12 a.m.

They will tell stories and lead the children in games. About 12 pre-school children are expected.

The girls already have their child care badges but are working for their first class badges. They are led by Mrs. Ben Geshensky and include Linda Anthony, Yoyo Geshensky, Margie Baldwin, Diane Widdows, Leslie Younkins and Beth Shoemaker.

Chorus Picture Tonight

Members of the Pocono Community Chorus are asked to be at the Stroudsburg Methodist Church promptly at 7:30 wearing their gowns in order that a group picture may be taken.

As usual we will have the largest selection from which to choose. Order now if you like. HA 1-4290.

Cornelia Stabler Gillam To Be Birthday 'Gift' For BPWC 36th Anniversary

The Business and Professional Woman's Club will give themselves a birthday present on their 36th anniversary Thursday night by presenting Cornelia Stabler Gillam in her "Cast of Characters" at the dinner meeting at the Penn-Stroud Hotel at 6:30.

Cornelia Stabler, better known to her Stroudsburg friends as Mrs. Clifford Gillam, is the author as well as actress of the monologues which she has presented from coast to coast in this country and in France, Belgium and Germany for the USO.

She received her early dramatic training at Swarthmore College with graduate work at Columbia University and Theodore Irvine's Studio for the theatre in New York City.

For her "Cast of Characters," she presents impersonations of people she has met — a busy suburbanite, a retired actress, a dime store sales girl, a grandmother, a refugee, and a club-woman among many others.

Her magic of changing from one character to another before the eyes of the audience is one of the reasons why her programs have been selected for the "big" programs of the year by many local organizations.

Penny Supper Set For May By Fire Co. Aux.

Saylorsburg — Plans were completed for a penny supper to be held at the firehouse in Saylorsburg on May 14 at the meeting of the Ladies Aux. of the Blue Ridge Hook and Ladder Co.

They voted a donation of $10 to the Red Cross and $5 to the Cancer fund.

Mrs. Grant Knowles presided at the meeting with invocation by Mrs. Anna M. Seixell, chaplain. Mrs. Peter Meixell, financial secretary, reported 225 members.

Hostesses were Mrs. Blanche Marsh, Mrs. Ruth Bloss, Mrs. Virginia Hawk and Mrs. Mary Van Buskirk.

At the meeting on April 24, hostesses will be Mrs. Carrie Young, Mrs. Elsie Buskirk, Mrs. Mae Hahn and Mrs. Margaret Faustlick.

Sails For Greece

Mrs. B. Carras of New York City, mother of Mrs. James Al-lam, Stroudsburg sailed on March 21 on the Queen Federica for a trip to her home town of Metelino, Greece. She plans to remain there for a year. She will visit her sisters whom she hasn't seen for 38 years.

On the sick list, The lodge now is selling paring knives, steak knives and seven-inch slicers, it was announced.

Mrs. Nina Van Auken assisted Mrs. LaBar in serving refreshments.

Grace Lutheran Church School

The staff of Grace Lutheran Church School, East Stroudsburg, met on Friday evening at Greenview Guest Farms near Sciota with forty-four present for their annual dinner fellowship. John J. Pentz, Jr., assistant superintendent, served as toastmaster.

Frank B. Michaels, Joseph H. Small and Hanford L. Cleveland each brought remarks. Dr. Lee Warren and Rev. William F. Wunder offered a challenge to the staff to attain a 400 attendance which is easily the potential of the church school. More than 300 have been present each of the last four consecutive Sundays.

Each of the superintendents, H. L. Cleveland, Joseph Small and Attorney Pentz with Pastor Wunder expressed gratitude to the staff for their loyalty and consecration.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. George Mensch, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Gerald A. Snyder, Miss Grace Treible, Mrs. Marion Kintner, Mrs. Jane Treible, Miss Leila Bunnell, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Horn, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Palmer, Jr., Mrs. Paul Miller, Mrs. Mary Eckler, Mrs. Lawrence Butz, Miss Joyce Butz, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Michaels, Mr. and Mrs. Hanford L. Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Small, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lippe, Sr., Mrs. James E. Beers, Mr. and Mrs. Corey J. Butz, Attorney and Mrs. John J. Pentz, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Elson S. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Mery, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Kintner, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shively, Rev. and Mrs. William F. Wunder, Miss Holly Potts, Asa Raymond, Mrs. Leona Mery, and Dr. and Mrs. Lee Warren.

Tickets For Games Night Distributed

Mt. Pocono — Tickets for the "All Games Night" to be held April 9th are now being distributed, personally, to all members of the Pocono Mountain Council of Republican Women. Each Council member will be responsible for a minimum of four tickets (one table); and, as hostess for her "table" will provide sandwiches and the game.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Azure, owners and managers of Paradise Valley Lodge in Mt. Pocono, have offered the use of the Lodge for the party.

Mrs. Harry Taylor, mother of Paul Azure, as party chairman, will serve coffee and tea and award the prizes for the evening. A prize will be contributed by Mrs. David Bisbing.

The party will be for both men and women, and for more than one "Party." And, as the name implies, each table of four persons may choose the game they wish to play—a prize will be awarded to the winner of each table.

Concert By Band For PTA Tonight

The March meeting of the Hamilton Parent-Teachers Assn. will be held tonight at 8 at the Hamilton School.

Mrs. Mary Gearhart, instructor in Special Education, of the Stroud Union School District will be the guest speaker. Her topic will be "Your Child and Special Education."

As a special feature, Walter Lane, former instructor of music at the Hamilton School, will conduct the concert band of Musicians Local No. 577, of the Bangor and Stroudsburg Area. The band, composed of 27 pieces, will present a variety of musical selections.

Refreshments will be served by the kindergarten, afternoon session, home room mothers.

Lady Reindeer

The Lady Reindeer will meet tonight at the Odd Fellows Hall in Stroudsburg. There will be initiation of candidates with a covered dish supper to follow the meeting.

Surprise Party Celebrates 85th Birthday

Sunday was a beautiful day for visiting so Mrs. Lucy Sullivan of 88 West Broad St., East Stroudsburg, who had celebrated her 85th birthday on Friday, was glad to hear that her sister, Mrs. John Kohn of New Milford was visiting her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hoffman, 549 North Courtland St.

However shortly after she arrived at the Hoffman home Mrs. Sullivan was surprised as one by one friends and relatives arrived with gifts and flowers, including the corsage of American beauty roses she is wearing.

Mrs. Sullivan was born in Mountmaine, daughter of the late Elijah and Barbara Strunk, and was one of nine children. She has three sisters, Mrs. Kohn, Mrs. Ida Mutchler of East Stroudsburg and Mrs. Abbie Sutton of Portland, and a brother Albert Ol. Strunk of East Stroudsburg.

She and her husband, John Sullivan, lived for many years in Mount Pocono. She is still very active.

The Wyckoff Shopper

"the friendly store" A.B. Wyckoff STROUDSBURG, PA.

Good morning . . . and relax! You needn't rush through your washing, or your bed making, or your dish drying in order to shop Wyckoff's and snatch up all the wonderful 85th anniversary buys. WYCKOFF'S WILL NOT OPEN TODAY UNTIL NOON and IT WILL REMAIN OPEN TONIGHT UNTIL 9. Naturally, there will be BIG SURPRISES and PRIZES from 6 p.m. until closing.

I was not in the store last Wednesday night, but I understand everyone had a lot of fun. Arthur Widmer, advertising manager, had the happy task of distributing silver dollars to all of the customers whose cards (presented them, along with a red carnation, as they entered) had the number "85". When the announcement was made, Shorty was literally stampeded . . . in fact, so many persons swarmed around him it was thought for a moment that the customers were looking, not at their card's number, but at the words "85th Anniversary." In no time at all, Shorty was shouting for more silver dollars. And when the second supply was depleted, he began handing out dollar bills . . . a total of 85.

But it was fun and our anniversary buys are so splendid, I'll wager that most of those dollars never did go out the front door but were spent right here.

If I have difficulty reducing (and I do) just chalk it up as an occupational hazard! The other morning Lois Payne and Jan Muller were on the radio with me in behalf of the Junior Women's Club bazaar for the Child Health Fund on Saturday, April 9, at the American Legion Home. Afterward we all had coffee and a bun in our Wyckoff Tea Room.

Thursday afternoon the towns burgesses, Jesse Flory and Ed Doran, met with some of the officers of Hadassah to formally purchase the first two tickets to the forthcoming Hadassah show of fashions imported from Israel, and, after the camera was snapped by the Daily Record's Rod MacLeod, we women discussed the show over glasses of cold juice. Sue Fleischmann, who with Erika Liebert is co-chairman of the show, scheduled for Wednesday, June 22, at Tamiment, was telling us she had received one of Wyckoff's anniversary Silver Dollars, and had greatly enjoyed the excitement of night shopping.

Fritzi Green, president of Hadassah was present for the photographic session, as was Eileen Karpe, publicity chairman, but Eileen rushed away before refreshments to meet her school child.

Then, Friday, we did our radio broadcast over clattering coffee cups and buns back in the Tea Room. Oh well, who wants to be thin?

Pete Wyckoff, stealing away from the men's department for a few minutes of relaxation the other afternoon, delighted customers at our Gift Wrap and Shopping Card Center with a demonstration of the automatic bowling game which is Anniversary Sale priced at 5.85. These Bowl-o-Matics are really something, and everyone was intrigued as Pete knocked the pins down, gently pressed a lever, and released it leaving them upright again. Parents will have as much fun with this as the children, and they'll be saving 7.15 if they buy now!

See you today? Fine. And tonight? GOOD! Right up until 9!

64 dollar question has been answered. Or perhaps one should call it an "85 dollar" question.

What the average person does not realize is the months of behind-the-scenes activity that goes into the planning of a big anniversary sale and the number of other companies that profit from it, both prior to and during the sale dates. Not only have Wyckoff buyers been on the market for months to make selections of Spring apparel and such that could be offered at savings of from 20 to 50%, but the Wyckoff display and advertising departments accelerated their regular work loads for weeks in advance, and will continue to work at maximum speed until the sale ends April 2nd.

The first major project was the planning of the mysterious 24 sheet posters with their fluorescent lettering. Originally they bore only a large question mark, an 8 crossed by the word DAYS, and a 5 crossed by the word NIGHTS. These were designed by Arthur A. Widmer, head of advertising, and produced by Mr. Widmer and G. Francis Meredith, head of the display department. They were placed on four billboards at the borough's gateways by Slate City Poster Company, of Bangor. Later this company changed the original signs to read Wyckoff's, in place of the question mark, and Anniversary. Sixty signs had also been designed, printed and placed on poles throughout the county.

In the meantime, Wyckoff executives and Mr. Widmer were working with Charles Edmondson, retail advertising manager of The Daily Record, planning a twelve page flyer to be issued with last Friday morning's edition of the paper, and to set up an advertising schedule for seven subsequent pages of advertising. Much of this involved special art work which was handled from sketches and photographs made locally by Hein-

ROAD BULLETINS, posted by Slate City Poster Co. have been the subject of much conversation recently. The first posters placed early in March had everyone guessing. People were wondering what the 8 and the 5 meant along side of a 6 foot question mark. The secret was out when the man of Chicago, engravers for many leading department stores. Posters for use within the store on pillars and in the windows, and lapel pins for the employees, were designed and sent to the Chromart Company of Philadelphia for silk screen printing.

Also involved in the extensive anniversary preparations was the Sun Lithographing Company of East Stroudsburg which printed some 20,000 Courtesy Day invitation cards which were sent to Connecticut to the firm that handles mailing for Sears-Roebuck, and were then posted to all accounts throughout this and adjacent states.

Even the presentation of gift balloons to the children involved other companies. These were selected by E. H. Wyckoff on a New York trip, were designed and printed with the store signature, and were blown up with helium in order to float upon the air—something which adds interest as far as the children are concerned, and which carries the Wyckoff name afar whenever one breaks loose from a tiny customer's wrist.

Radio too was involved in advertising the 85th anniversary.

Sears Offers Paint Mixer

NOW THE rainbow comes encased in a steel cabinet.

With the new "Shade-O-Matic" paint mixing machine recently installed in the local Sears store the homeowner will have a choice of 1200 colors, available in less than 30 seconds.

Sears has pioneered in the development of a wide selection of decorator paint colors but until the installation of the "Shade-O-Matic," the local store has offered only 360 colors. Now a veritable wide, wide world of color can be had in Sears paint department.

Available from the "Shade-O-Matic" machine will be the Harmony House "Go Together" colors. These are Sears own colors which the company uses on all its home furnishing merchandise, allowing the homeowner to plan a professional looking color scheme knowing that all the items she chooses will mix or match perfectly.

Time-saving is another benefit of the "Shade-O-Matic." No longer will a Sears paint customer have to wait for the salesperson to find the tint color and the base paint and carefully measure out the tint. After the customer gives the salesperson the color chip, now all that must be done is setting

Crosses Burn In South Flareups Occur In North

By The Associated Press

FLAMING crosses in the Deep South and antisegregation sympathy demonstrations by students in the North and West added fuel to the nation's tense racial situation Sunday.

Hooded Ku Klux Klansmen burned crosses in Georgia, Alabama, South Carolina and Florida, where hundreds of Negroes have gone to jail for defying segregation laws.

"We just wanted to show the public we are organized and ready for business," one unidentified Klansman told a policeman in Alabama's Oulboun County where more than 100 crosses were set ablaze Saturday night.

Demonstrations
New Negro attempts were made Saturday to break color lines at lunch counters in Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina and Texas.

White and Negro students supporting the campaign of Southern Negroes picketed stores in Los Angeles, Calif.; Iowa City, Iowa; State College, Pa. and Albany, N. Y. In New York City, an outdoor rally in support of Southern integration efforts was held in Harlem.

Tennessee state agents were ordered by Gov. Buford Ellington to determine if a Nashville sit-in demonstration was staged by Negro students for the benefit of television camera men.

A special mayor's committee said the Nashville incident wiped out three weeks work to ease racial tensions.

Negro leaders and CBS television officials denied the demonstration was staged for the benefit of a camera crew that was in Nashville to make a documentary film on the background of sit-down protests.

In Florida, where two crosses were burned, racial feeling was given as the reason for canceling a meeting of about 800 Negro high school pupils, Florida A&M University, some of whose students staged a demonstration that brought on a near riot in Tallahassee several weeks ago, sponsored the meeting to encourage Negroes to go to college in Florida. It had been scheduled for next Saturday.

Two U. S. senators, Georgia's Herman E. Talmadge (D) and New York's Kenneth B. Keating (R), went on the air Sunday night to debate civil rights legislation and wound up arguing about the lunch counter demonstrations. Talmadge said they "have done a great deal to set back race relations." Keating argued that Negroes have a right to protest discriminatory policies of store owners.

The senators' remarks were recorded for the radio program, "American Forum of the Air."

There were 2,340,004 arrests made in the year 1958, according to reports from cities with populations over 2,500.

Price-Earnings Ratio

By William A. Doyle
Q. In one of your columns you referred to the "price-earnings ratio" as one of the yardsticks for judging the value of a stock. This seemed very logical. May this yardstick also be applied to mutual funds?

A. No—not really. A mutual fund is an entirely different thing. It is an open end because management is pledged to redeem each outstanding share at the asset value each share is backed up by at the time the share is presented for redemption.

When you purchase mutual fund shares you are buying asset value. The price you pay is the asset value per share, plus the commission.

You are also "buying" management as well as the policy and the objectives of the mutual fund. This is because the fund's management invests the money you paid for your shares, as well as the money of the other shareholders in a diversified list of securities.

The policy and objectives of one fund may be very different from those of another fund. Some funds aim for growth and almost all the securities they buy have high price-earnings ratios. Others try for income and purchase mostly stocks with low price-earnings ratios.

When you are considering investing in mutual funds, you should look at those whose investment aims are the same as your aims. And you should, of course, check the fund's past performance to see if they have been successful in meeting their objectives.

Q. Some years ago, I burned a Series E U. S. Savings bond with some trash. I have no record or number of the bond. Is there any way this can be replaced?

A. Yes, there is. Naturally, it's going to require some red tape. It is because of cases such as yours that the U. S. Treasury Department advises bond owners to "keep a description of the bonds by series, denomination, serial number and name of co-owner, if any, apart from the bonds."

Nevertheless, write to the Bureau of Public Debt, Division of Loans and Currency, 536 South Clark Street, Chicago 5, Illinois. Forms to fill out and instructions will be sent to you.

Getting a substitute or cash for the bond is going to require an "all-out" search. But a burned bond means money out of your pocket. So, good luck.

To get some idea of the vastness of Texas, the distance between Beaumont and El Paso is greater than the distance between New York City and Chicago.

Pope To Elevate Seven Prelates As Cardinals

VATICAN CITY (AP)—For the first time in history the world's four major races of mankind will be represented Monday when seven Roman Catholic prelates become cardinals of the Church.

They include the world's first Negro, first Japanese and first Filipino cardinals. The others are two Italians, a Frenchman and a Dutchman.

Their elevation to the Roman Catholic Church's high senate, whose members are traditionally known as "equals among equals" and from whose ranks the pope is elected, will bring the college's membership to 85 — an all-time record.

Pope John XXIII pointed out a few days ago during a Lenten ceremony in Rome: "What a sight the world will see during the approaching consistory when these new cardinals from the various continents don the Roman purple! A display of Catholicism, union, peaceful strength which stirs our spirit with the continuing realization of the promise made by Jesus Christ: 'and they will come from the east and west, north and south.'"

The new cardinal from the south, a handsome, youthful Negro, is Laurian Rugambwa, 47-year-old bishop whose diocese of Butaba stretches for 4,000 square miles in Tanganyika Territory. Just 40 years ago he was still a pagan member of a family of tribal chiefs.

From the Far East, the new prince of the Roman Catholic Church are two—Rufino J. Santos, 51-year-old archbishop of Manila, in the almost solidly Catholic Philippines, and Peter Tatsuo Doi, the 61-year-old archbishop of Tokyo, whose Catholic flock of 1,370,000 is a small percentage of Tokyo's total Japanese population of 11 million.

Vatican circles indicated that Pope John, in naming the church's first Negro, Japanese and Filipino cardinals, wished—in addition to providing representation for expanding Roman Catholicism—to underline the brotherhood of mankind at a time when racial violence again is breaking out in the world.

Pope John is expected to outline his thoughts on the subject in a secret consistory Monday when he will officially present the names of the new cardinals to the college.

AP Bureau Head Dies In Capital

SHENANDOAH, Pa. (AP)—Funeral services will be held Wednesday for Leonard A. Unger, correspondent in charge of the Harrisburg Associated Press Bureau.

Unger, 40, was stricken with a heart attack at his Camp Hill home in suburban Harrisburg Saturday. He lapsed into unconsciousness and was rushed to Harrisburg Hospital where he died shortly after his arrival.

Unger's wife, Florence, was with him when he died. Despite a rheumatic heart condition, he appeared in good health and rarely was absent from his office.

One of the state's best known political writers, Unger was a 17-year veteran as an AP newsman. During that time, he covered all fields of reporting, scoring "beats" on many major state government and legislative stories.

He joined the AP at its Pittsburgh bureau July 15, 1943, after serving as city editor of the Shenandoah Herald.

He came to Harrisburg in October 1945, and covered eight sessions of the Pennsylvania legislature and the administrations of five governors. He maintained close personal contact with all of the chief executives.

Unger's biggest "beat" was in reporting nearly an hour ahead of other newsmen the release of Alvin Karpis from the Levensworth Federal Penitentiary in 1954. No telephones were available for newsmen at the prison gates. Unger arranged to use a relay system involving a taxi radio.

Unger was known for his clear interpretations of the state's fiscal affairs, particularly in explaining state budgets and what they would mean to the man in the street.

A native of Shenandoah, in Pennsylvania's anthracite area, he was honored in 1959 by residents of Jim Thorpe. The testimonial was given in honor of his stories on efforts of anthracite area communities to rehabilitate themselves economically.

Unger coined the phrase, operation bootstrap, to describe these efforts.

One of his stories described a nickel-a-week per resident contribution by citizens of Mauch Chunk and East Mauch Chunk to aid their operation bootstrap. The story resulted in contributions to the community from across the nation. The communities, in their drive for industry, merged to form Jim Thorpe, Pa.

AL Aide Satisfied
UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP)—A Pennsylvania American Legion official said the organization is entirely satisfied with Pennsylvania State University's position on speakers to the students. Regis F. Cusick, Jr., Pittsburgh, chairman of the Legion's counter subversive activities committee, met with Dr. Eric A. Walker, president.

AIN'T SHE A BEAUTY—In the picture on the left is Raymond Williams, southeast fish commissioner, holding a 22 inch tiger trout. This is one of the 1,500 trout placed in Saylor's Lake by Saylor's Lake Fishing Assn. yesterday. Standing is Charles Landry, recording secretary and fish committee chairman of the association. Nearby Waters Stocked With Kokanee Salmon

THE SAYING, "Something new has been added" can be applied by the fishermen of this state this year.

The something new for them is the experimental planting of Kokanee salmon in Pennsylvania which started into its second year when close to one-half million fry and fingerlings were released in eight water areas.

Local and nearby lakes stocked with the new fish are Upper Woods Pond, Wayne County; Fairview Lake, Pike County; and Harvey's Lake, Luzerne County.

Other lakes in the state to be stocked with Kokanee are Lake Winola, Wyoming County; Half Way Dam, Union County; and Roosevelt Dam, Centre County.

Many Names
The fish generally accepted the common name of Kokanee, but has been called almost everything from little red fish to land-stocked sockeye salmon.

Thought it is a red salmon and a native of fresh water lakes in the Pacific Northwest and Japan it does somewhat resemble a rainbow trout.

Prior to spawning, the fish have silver sides and bellies, but during the spawning season the sides become red on the males and slate-gray on the females.

They resemble trout but can be distinguished from them by the fact that they have 12 rays in the anal fin and from 30 to 40 long gill rakers.

The spawning habits of the fish are like those of the salmon family. They reach sexual

Dr. and Mrs. Bennett Strait spent the weekend in Fallsburg as guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Lobacker where Dr. Strait's birthday, Sunday, was celebrated by their grandsons, Paul and Billy.

Harry Hartman is recovering after surgery performed at the General Hospital.

Spawning Period

From August to February the fish is busy spawning. The wide area in time for spawning is due to the location of the fish. Different geographic areas affect the time for the reproduction cycle to take place.

Like the time for spawning, the growth and size also depends on the location. Generally the fish will mature at 8 to 21 inches and reach the weight of four pounds and under. The record catch is four pounds.

Most of the growth takes place from July to October, and there is very little growth during the winter months.

In habit the Kokanee is very similar to that of the lake trout. Cool waters are necessary and as the summer temperatures increase the fish goes deeper.

The Kokanee are usually regarded as a difficult fish to harvest on hook and line due to the fact that they are plankton feeders. Methods used by fishermen are still in the experimental stages but it is known that the fish can be taken by trolling, still fishing and fly casting.

Keep Line Tight
Trotting, which usually consists of a metal wobbler or flasher followed by small hook with a piece of worm attached. The line should be kept tight at all times so that the fish will hook itself.

Bait for the fisherman recommended is worms, salmon eggs or corn.

The Kokanee is a vigorous fighter, having a tender and small mouth. It is therefore recommended that a limber rod be used.

These fish are not usually caught until the third or fourth year of their life and are found in schools which move into deeper water in the summer.

Now that you have been brought up-to-date on this something new keep an eye on the opening date and enjoy a fine catch, they are very good eating.
